

A Group of Ambulances Manned by American Volunteers. They Are Used to Bring Wounded from the Firing Line to the American Hospital in Paris. Each Ambulance Can Carry Two Wounded Lying Down and Two Sitting up.

The American Ambulance at Neuilly, Paris. Equipped and Supported by Voluntary Contributions from the United States. Over 450 Beds Are Now Occupied, with Accommodations for Hundreds More. The Largest Hospitals in America Are Sending Over Details of Surgeons to Serve as Internes for Limited Periods.